

THAT STATUE AGAIN.

Whose Statue is it at Bailey's?—A Brace of Disclaimers from Old Friends of Alderman McMullen.

The communications given below involve the subject of the Mullen or the McMullen statue in fresh confusion. Our correspondents write with an earnestness and confidence that do them credit, but it is not certain that they are good judges of such a matter. While we admit that they are direct, practical men, we doubt if they are fitted by taste or education to criticize a work of art.

Evening Telegraph. Sir:—I was going up Chestnut at last night when I saw a kind of crowd at a shop window and stopped myself natural like to look in. There was a marble image of a gentleman I am not acquainted with in the window that was what the people were looking at. Soon the crowd dropped off and I was left there alone. Just then a Police comes up and claps me not so very light neither on the shoulder. "Come—you get out of this," he says. "You git," he says. "We've been put up to that," he says. "You can't play that game here, my man," he says. By this time the Police had got me shoved pretty well across the street. "What game are you talking about?" I says. "Gitting mad?" "What have you been put up to?" "Why about breaking that wider to get up Alderman McMullen's statue," says the Police. I but right out a plain when he said that—"That's another of your games is it?" says he. "But it won't do," he says. "You git"—he says. "Why look here old Squawkes!" says I, "You don't mean to tell me that you talk that fair in the window there for Bill McMullen? Hold me, somebody," an I screamed right out. I run that Police so unmerciful that after a while he didn't like it. "Well," he says, "it's in the paper, that's all I know." "Wot paper?" I asked, as grave as I could; and he told me, "The," says I, "I need to know a man was carrier on that paper, and consequently I feel a sort of acquaintance with it; I'm going to write to that editor and tell him that he's wrong. And so you're sir! It's a out an out mistake. Why Lord bless your soul, sir, that ain't our Bill! Somebody's been playing it on you, sir—they have indeed. The gentleman, whoever he is, is no more like old Bill McMullen than you are like the Queen of Sheba, and they do say that she is as black as a coal-scuttle. Well, we do each of us get sold now and then in our lives, and you've caught it this time.

Yours to command JERRY T. Mr. Editor I see a piece in your paper saying that Alderman McMullen had his statue made and I went up to Bailey's store to see it. I don't know whether your making fools of people or not but the piece seemed wrote fair enough and maybe you meant it. Anyways that Statue ain't any more the alderman than it is me. If you're on the Square you're the worst look in man I ever seen. This is from one which has known W. McMullen from a baby and he hereon specifies that I know it ain't the same person. There ain't any guess work about this for he knows it. Who in the thunder it is I don't know but it ain't the Alderman. Why see here this is all [There are some necessary omissions made in our correspondent's note. —Ed.] foolishness. I don't believe you have saw the statue at all. Why see here its statue like the alderman. In the first place it ain't got enough hair. The clothes ain't the same nor yet the boots nor the features. Then he have a kind of ugly look on his mug which Mr. McMullen ain't. Then everybody knows the alderman had his nose broke helping a friend and no disgrace to him and the statue nose ain't broke though it ought to be if it pertains to be W. McMullen. And I ain't up to this sort of thing Mister Editor but I know it ain't him and I can lick the man which says it.

Yours with Respect Yalier Wagner

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Mrs. Bowers as "Donna Diana." Lively intrigue is the most marked characteristic of Spanish comedy, and there is always a well-defined plot and a busy flow of incidents which make them particularly effective in representation upon the stage. There is very little character painting in the Spanish drama, whereas in the best English works character rather than plot is considered of importance. But for stage purposes and for the entertainment of average audiences the Spanish pieces have many advantages. Their construction is generally exceedingly artistic, and the plot and counterplot and rapid movement that distinguish them render them vastly amusing. Love's Masquerade, the comedy in which Mrs. D. P. Bowers appeared last evening at the Walnut, is an adaptation of one of the most famous Spanish classic plays, the Disdain Met with Disdain of Moreto. It is one of the most brilliant pieces that has been given to the English-speaking stage of late years, and it is so exceedingly entertaining that it is remarkable it does not attract crowded houses whenever it is acted. The idea is that of a proud lady who scorns love as an idle passion being subdued by an assumption of pride on the part of her lover, and the conflict of wit between "Donna Diana" and "Don Cesar," who may almost be described as Spanish counterparts of "Beatrice" and "Benedick," give rise to a succession of brilliant scenes which afford the representatives of the principal characters some admirable opportunities. "Diana" is the work of Mrs. Bowers' finest parts, and her delineation of the conflicting emotions inspired in the breast of the haughty beauty whose disdain is conquered by the disdain of her suitor is artistic in the extreme. The role is one in which a capable actress cannot fail to figure to advantage, and Mrs. Bowers makes the most of the many opportunities it presents. Mr. McCollom, who played the part of "Don Cesar" last night, is not capable of doing it justice. He lacks entirely the light airy grace that it requires, and while his performance was not without merit, it was not strikingly excellent. Mr. Walcott represented "Perin," the secretary of "Diana," and the confidant of the two lovers, by whose assistance the thread of the plot is woven and then unravelled again, most admirably, and his acting was as graceful and elegant as Mr. McCollom's was heavy and lacking in finesse.

The City Amusements.

AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC the spectacle of The Black Orok will be represented this evening. AT THE WALNUT Mrs. D. P. Bowers will personate "Clara Melville" in Falconer's drama of Spare or, What Can't Money Do? AT THE ARCH Mr. Brougham's drama of The Red Light will be performed this evening, with Mr. Brougham in the part of "Ned McDermott." AT THE CHESTNUT the comedy of Saratoga will be performed this evening. AT THE AMERICAN the Japanese acrobats and jugglers will appear this evening. AT THE MUSEUM, Ninth and Arch streets, Mr. Robert McWade will personate "Rip Van Winkle" this evening. A matinee to-morrow.

CITY ITEMS.

MR. WILLIAM W. CASSIDY, the jeweller at No. 8 South Second street, has one of the largest and most attractive stocks of all kinds of Jewelry and Silverware in the city. He has also on hand a fine assortment of the American Western Watches. Those who purchase at this store at the present time are certain to get the worth of their money.

TO CONSUMPTIVES.—WILSON'S COD LIVER OIL AND LIME has now been before the public for ten years, and has steadily grown into favor and appreciation. This could not be the case unless the preparation was of undoubted and high intrinsic value. The combination of the Phosphate of Lime with pure Cod Liver Oil, as prepared by Dr. Wilson, has produced a new phase in the treatment of Consumption and all diseases of the Lungs. This article can be taken by the most delicate invalid without creating the disgusting nausea which is such a prominent objection to the Cod Liver Oil when taken without Lime. This preparation is prescribed by the regular faculty, and sold by the proprietor, wholesale and retail, at A. B. WILSON, Chemist, No. 146 Court Street, Boston, and by druggists generally.

BORNE'S FLORIMEL—An exquisite perfume. VEGETINE is composed of the best vegetable ingredients the dispensary of nature furnishes. Their juices are extracted in a way which preserves their undiminished medical properties, making it one of the greatest cleansers of the blood that is or can be put together. It extends its influence into every part of the human organism; commencing from the foundation, correcting diseased action and restoring vital powers, creating a healthy formation and purification of the blood, driving out disease, and leaving Nature to perform its allotted part.

FROM NEW YORK. [BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Exclusively to The Evening Telegraph.

Annual Meeting of the Labor Reform League. NEW YORK, May 9.—The Labor Reform League is holding its annual meeting to-day at Steinway Hall. The audience at the morning session consisted of about four hundred persons, chiefly laborers. Benjamin F. Sargent, of Boston, presided; A. M. Powell read letters from Hon. Charles Sumner regretting that he could not attend the meeting and recommending Americans to give up the war-dance around San Domingo. The annual report dealt with the South, the Indian and Chinese question, and recorded the movement inaugurated by Julia Ward Howe for the promoting of peace by summoning a congress of women to London.

Wendell Phillips spoke nearly an hour, and chiefly dealt with Southern and labor question. He approved Mr. Sumner's San Domingo policy, and regretted the insult offered to him. There is still, he said, a state of war with the South. General Butler, unawed by gamblers and Rebel rings in New Orleans, executed Mulford. Let General Grant lay a hand on the leaders in the South, men who count their acres by thousands and are investigators of assassinations—let the President follow Butler's plan, and you will never hear of Ku-klux again. (Applause.) Let the cowards of Carolina know that the President is terribly in earnest, and there will be an end of the Ku-klux.

In reply to a voice asking, "What about carpet-bagger?" he said, the South is ignorant, poor, and ruled by departing barbarism, yet they repel a Northerner who goes down with everything they want, brains and money, but sly cunning. The Northerner remains to squeeze political power out of these pitiful babies. (Laughter.) If the North has to take up arms again they will stop at no constitutional restrictions or State lines, but put the South under the heel of military despotism. On questions of labor he urged the Republicans to adopt the labor reform into their platform. He spoke of corruption in judges and city officials, and the legions of cowardly Shylocks who dip their hands into the private fortunes of the city are teaching the men with bludgeons, and said the next time the Bowery boys have a riot they may take it into their heads not to hang negroes to lamp-posts, but to indulge in millionaires.
